

COOLIDGE VISIT ON STATE SOIL NEAR TO CLOSE

President Attends Church
on Saint Simons Island
and Later Goes to Frederica Fort.

PARTY TO LEAVE ON JANUARY 1ST

Party Spends Night 12
Miles Away From 'Phone
After Day Spent in Devotionals.

St. Simons Island, Ga., December
30.—(AP)—President and Mrs. Coolidge worshipped here today at a little woodland church, visited points of historic interest, dating from Georgia's colonial days and then boarded the yacht of their host, Howard E. Coffin, for a 30-mile run to his mainland game preserve.

With the presidential flag flying at her masthead, Coffin's craft, the Zapala, arrived here shortly after 10 o'clock, bringing the chief executive from Sapelo island, where he has been vacationing since Wednesday. Mr.
and Mrs. Coffin, Colonel Osman Latrobe and Captain Wilson Brown, the president's military and naval aides, Colonel James F. Coughlin, the white house physician, and Frank O. Salisbury, an English artist who is here
making portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge.

Through forest-bound roadways, the party motored to Frederica, at the northern end of the island, and visited, first of all, the ruins of Fort Oglethorpe, erected in 1736 as a means of defense against the Spaniards. Both Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge seemed much interested. They examined the old fortification closely and climbed onto a rampart at the top in order to inspect a rusty old cannon which lay there.

From the fort Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge went directly to Christ Episcopal church, a small frame structure surrounded by oaks and pines, from which hangs the lacelike Spanish mosaic, which grows in profusion on the island. The church stands on the spot where once John and Charles Wesley preached.

Christmas hymns were sung, the interior of the church was decorated with wild-holly, and the service, the Rev. Charles H. Lee, preached a sermon in which he combined something
of Christmas and of the new year as well.

Hears Sermon.
Urging his congregation to take stock of themselves, as the old year
passes away and renew their determination to follow the teachings of Christ in the year to come, Dr. Lee at the same time denounced those who isolate themselves and live for themselves alone.

"Everyone," he said, "should take an interest in his fellows; not an official interest, but a kind and loving interest."
Motoring back to the yacht after
the service was over, Mr. and Mrs.
Coolidge stopped on the way to inspect a granite monument marking
the site of the battle of Bloody Marsh,
an important encounter between the English colonists under Oglethorpe
and the Spaniards. The significance of the monument was explained to the chief executive by Charles F. Edden, an associate of Mr. Coffin, who acted today as chauffeur for Mr. and Mrs.
Coolidge.

As Mr. Coolidge boarded the Zapala
the presidential flag was run up again and a moment later the yacht
cast off for the cruise to the hunting
preserve, where early tomorrow Mr.
Coolidge plans to hunt wild turkeys.
On the way to the preserve the chief executive planned to stop for a brief
visit at the plantation of Charles S.
Barrett, an old friend of the president.

It became known tonight that the president's midwinter vacation is drawing to a close. Tentative plans call for the departure of the presidential party for Washington sometime late Tuesday.

The president tonight was almost completely isolated, as the Coffin hunting lodge at Floyd's Neck was without telephone facilities. The only

California Fears Pund and Lumpkin Threats at Center

Jacket Captain Expected
To Half All Gaining
Through Middle; Giant
Fullback Is Menace.

ODDS 50-50; BETTING REPORTED AS LIGHT

Thomason Is Another
Source of Worry for Western Team; Jackets
Visit Two Battleships.

Pasadena, Calif., December 30.— (United News.)—University of California looks with some uncertainty
upon the sturdy figures of Captain Peter Pund and Father Lumpkin, who will guard the center of the Georgia
Tech line in their football game here Tuesday.

The two young huskies in question
probably will take a terrific pounding
when California sends Big Charley Schmidt at them, but chances for consistent gains appear small.
Pund, who is Georgia Tech's all-American center, and Lumpkin, who backs up the line, give every indication of forcing the Golden Bear to look some place else for an opening.
Even if Schmidt gets past Pund he will have to pass Lumpkin and when 190 pounds of Schmidt and 190 pounds
of Lumpkin meet something is certain to happen.

Gain Around Wings.
Every indication is that California's main gains will be made around the wings. The Bears have a fleet trio in Lom, Egan and Barr and they ought to be able to add much more yardage
than could be gained through the territory presided over by Pund-Lumpkin combination.

California cooked up a few surprises in its practices closed to the public and it wouldn't be unusual to see Fred Schellinger, a substitute halfback, do things if he is used.
California will have the advantage in passing for three reasons. Two of them are Avery and Phillips at ends
and the other is that Lom is a much better tosser than Mizell, of Tech.

Avery and Phillips are a couple of fast-footers and are ball hawks for Eisen. Mizell, Durant and "Stumpy"
Thomason will find themselves reaching high to knock the ball out of their hands.

California has a seasoned line, but Tech is accorded the advantage in the backfield. Mizell outranks Barr while Thomason is much more discussed than Eisen. Mizell, Durant and "Stumpy"
Thomason will find themselves reaching high to knock the ball out of their
hands.

Both Lom and Mizell will be rushed in their kicking. Practice has shown Lom to outrank Mizell in the punting
game and California will have an advantage if the teams elect to play defensive ball and wait for the breaks.
There may be a great deal of running from punt formation. Both the hooters are triple threat men.

Both teams took things easy today
and will do so again Monday. California held blackboard drill after lunch
and Georgia Tech did the same later
in the day.

The opposing coaches said they would run their players through light
limbering up drills, signals, passing and kicking sometime Monday.
About 80,000 persons will see the teams play Tuesday afternoon in the Rose Bowl after the Tournament of Roses parade.

Betting, for the most part even, is light and continues to find some favor for California at 10 to 8.

BRITISH ROYAL HAS QUIET DAY, BULLETINS SAY

Lack of Specific Information Adds to Restlessness of Subjects as Monarch Battles Disease.

THREE DAYS PASS SINCE RELAPSE

Movements of Royal Family Afford Only Real
Clue to Exact Condition
of Ailing Sovereign.

London, December 30.—(AP)—King
George today passed another quiet day without change, according to the bulletin issued at the palace at 8:30
p. m. Under the present circumstances, this must be regarded as favorable.

Three days have passed since the discouraging reports which alarmed
the country on Thursday and the best that can be said is that there is no noticeable increase in the strength
of his majesty at least there has been no diminution.

The medical bulletins continue to be extremely terse and noncommittal
and to that extent are disappointing
as the people are hungrily looking for
some definite report of progress made.
The present reports of mere quies-cence give rise to all kinds of rumors
and suspicion which the public
would like to see authoritatively dissipated. Until the physicians are able to give such a reassuring report
and even apprehension will continue.

Tonight's bulletin said simply "The king has had a quiet day. There is no change to report in his majesty's condition." It was signed by the three regular physicians, Sir Stanley
Hewett, Sir Hugh Riggall and Lord
Duns. The king had passed a fair night.
The three regular physicians had held another consultation during the morning
and it was said at the palace that
the king had passed a fair night.

In the meantime the movements of the royal family are closely watched
as affording the only possible signs of the king's condition. A fair night and the king's movements are closely watched as affording the only possible
signs of the king's condition.

These indications, together with the fact that only the regular physicians have been in attendance today,
were interpreted as good signs that
the royal family is confident that there is no immediate danger to be feared. Moreover, it is assumed,
while the bulletins are so terse, that
the contrary, that the royal patient
is managing to take sleep and nourishment.

GEORGIA POSTMASTERS PAY HUGE SUMS FOR PRIVILEGE OF OFFICE, BROOKHART SAYS

RAILROADS MAKE
REAL PROGRESS
DURING PAST YEAR

Atterbury, President of Pennsylvania, Says Pub- lic Support Has Rallied to Steam Transportation

New York, December 30.—(AP)—
American railroads made real progress during 1928, not only in improved operation but in a realization of the importance of coordinating roads, motor and air transportation
to provide the public with the best available service with the minimum of unnecessary overlapping, in the belief of W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Reviewing the trends of 1928, he said: "During the past year the railroads have also felt they have now become sufficiently secure and the support of the public generally is so manifested through regulating author-
ties that projects of expansion and development could be entered upon with more than ordinary confidence."

"Our own company recently announced a comprehensive electrification plan covering the territory between New York and Wilmington. It is expected that during 1929 the air and rail service across the country will be inaugurated. Progress
is being made in coordinating bus,
truck and container car service."

The new year promises to be prosperous. Railroad progress will go forward with that prosperity, and as far as possible, ahead of it. The most gratifying characteristic of the situation at the end of the year is the loyal attitude of the working organization and the intelligence support of public opinion."

Numerous other business leaders
agreed with Mr. Atterbury's prediction of a prosperous year in 1929.
L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware and Hudson and of the New York State Chamber of Commerce, believes business should continue to improve,
adding: "There is a spirit of confidence among business men, the background of healthy and prosperous business."

Andrew J. Maloney, president of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company, of Philadelphia, pointing out that unprecedented activity in extending the use of anthracite as domestic fuel was the feature of the coal
industry's progress in 1928, declared
that he regarded the future with confidence and optimism."

F. R. Henderson, president of the New York Rubber Exchange, expressed
the belief that "probably no time
in 25 years has the rubber industry looked forward with more confidence to a new year. Today's rubber price level of 20 cents a pound, as compared with 40 cents a year ago, he says, has given the manufacturing industry a healthy start in 1929."

Sam H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation,
of Chicago, says that as an individual
the efficiency of the American farmer
gradually is increasing "although agriculture, economically considered, has not been on the upgrade in 1928."

In an Atlanta home, as the property of a small Atlanta boy, there now stands one of the few personal belongings
of General Oglethorpe to be found anywhere in the state. It is a diminutive mahogany secretary of simple but graceful lines. Over its smooth writing surface Georgia's illustrious founder once bent as he swept his quill pen across foolscap sheets as he composed letters for his friends in England or issued orders to his colonists.

The proud owner of this piece,
which is equally valuable as a beautiful antique or a treasured heirloom,
is little eight-year-old Edward Demere,
of 187 Fourteenth street. He is the son of Mrs. Edward Demere, the wife of Edward Demere, of Savannah,
and the son of a family which has lived on Georgia's shores since early in the eighteenth century.

The desk has been passed down
from father to son in the Demere
family since it was presented by General Oglethorpe to Captain Rex as he demore, of Birmingham, who will led to him as the next in line following his death.

Captain Demere and General Oglethorpe set foot on Georgia's soil together and together they struggled
through the early years of the colony's life. Finally when Oglethorpe was returning to England, he presented the desk to his companion as a token of his affection. It has since been a prized possession of the Demere family.

South American Air Route Is Urgent U. S. Obligation

EUROPEAN NATIONS ALREADY AT WORK

BY WILL IRWIN.
(Copyright 1928, by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)
Aboard U. S. S. Utah, En Route to
Hampton Roads, December 30.—As President-elect Hoover's South American tour fades into retrospect the thought occurs that the most immediate task in the big job of solidifying
good relations between the two continent disclosed by the good will visit
in perfecting our aerial communications.

I have already described the new French airline, which brings Paris
canal with Lima by air via Colombia
and 10 days of Buenos Aires. But the Germans are also active. They maintain mail lines under government contracts with Colombia and parts of Brazil. In Bolivia, which in the future may be the storm center of South American trade, a German mission is training the army and using the army
planes for carrying mail between the principal cities.

An American company, as before stated, has mail contracts in Peru
and is chartered for an eventual
through connection between Washington and Lima. Those two points are about as far apart as New York and San Francisco, which our mail planes connect in 36 hours.

There is more to be done, however, than getting the planes and setting
them flying. The perfect air route,
adapted to both day and night flying,
must have landing fields with beacons
every fifty miles. At the very least,
there should be a landing field every 150 miles.

Germany has already cut into the ideal route. She is operating under contract the mail routes of Colombia.
Parenthetically, in return for certain privileges, the company gives the government the right to commander all its planes and material in time of war. This has its importance for us in view of the proximity of Colombia
to the Panama canal.

But on a purely commercial side,
we cannot now connect the Panama
canal with Lima by air via Colombia
without making some compromise with the German company. We can overcome that obstacle in a pinch by flying from Panama to Ecuador direct.
But, if while we hesitate, some european company, in view of the sudden and lively demand for
air mail in South American countries,
steps in and seizes upon Ecuador, we shall find our way to Lima barred.
That connection with Lima is as far as we need look at present.

The next stage of our Washington-
Buenos Aires route is over the rugged
and comparatively uninhabited north Chilean desert, where there are special obstacles to be overcome.
This matter is of such importance
that it merits the immediate attention of all individuals and organizations concerned in the pleasant political relations and in trade unhampered
by artificial restrictions between the two American continents.

SENATORIAL QUIZ BRINGS EVIDENCE OF G. O. P. TRIBUTE

Hager, Atlanta Federal District Attorney, Contributed to Davis Organization, Records Show.

WASHINGTON, December 30.—(AP)—
Republican patronage conditions in Georgia,
operated on a systematic scale, whereby postmasters made regular contributions to state republican headquarters
and supplied funds for paying "salaries" to the late Henry Lincoln Johnson, negro national committeeman, and other officers of the state organization. These facts were unfolded here
today by Senator Smith W. Brookhart, republican, of Iowa, in a special report on the senatorial investigation into patronage activities in southern states.

Senator Brookhart, chairman of the special investigating committee which held hearings in Atlanta during the congressional recess, made public records revealing a system of patronage
which promises to have a far-reaching effect on the sense of inquiry. The records consisted for the most part of copies of a card index system used in republican state headquarters in Georgia and check stubs of expenditures
by that office, showing the amount of money to be "contributed" by the various postmasters and how this was spent.

"Contributions" by postmasters and other holders of patronage offices in the state under the republican organization ran from $50 to $100 a year,
it was disclosed. However, none of the principal cities of the state, such as Atlanta, Macon, Augusta and Savannah, were included in the records. A few of the smaller cities, like Winder, called for payments of $120, while LaGrange was listed for a "contribution" of $150 from Postmaster Walter L. Turner
in 1926.

Former Republican National Com-
mitteeman, a letter dated July 11, 1926,
received a salary of $250 per month,
while secretary of the republican state central committee under the Johnston regime, Senator Brookhart reported. A similar amount was paid John W. Martin, treasurer of the organization. But Henry Lincoln Johnson, a Negro, was receiving $300
per month and a check for this amount was paid his widow for the month after he died. It was revealed also that the republican central committee financed
numerous trips to Washington by Roscoe Pickens and others identified with the organization. The item showed a telephone bill of $73.27 for a single month.

The records made public today contained a letter dated July 11, 1926,
from E. H. Brinson, a disappointed prospective office seeker, to Senators George and Harris, of Georgia,
offering him the item described as "possible evidence" that the postoffice at Butler, Ga., had been "bought." He added that he had complained to Postmaster General Harry S. New and

You Read The Clues---And Find The Murderer!
BE YOUR OWN DETECTIVE!

THE BAFFLE BOOK stories which start on Page 10 of this issue of The Constitution, present thirty full-fledged mysteries to be solved from given clues. Devised by two mystery writers, these stories grew out of a game that has been the denier of the cognoscenti. You can play sides, according to rules given in the book, or you can take it off by yourself and play solitaire. If you reason out (not guess) the answers to the mysteries, you win the game.

CITY COUNCIL TO GET BUDGET JANUARY 21

Requests for Appropriations
Go to New Finance Committee January 7.

Requests for appropriations for various departments of the city government will be presented for consideration to the new finance committee, to be appointed by Mayor I. N. Ragsdale on January 7, which body in turn will make budget recommendations to the first meeting of the new city council, slated for January 21, it was indicated Sunday night.

Indications are that requests from the various departments will far exceed the $17,000,000 which is the absolute maximum of the 1929 budget, according to Graham C. West, city comptroller, who pointed out that the 1928 budget was slightly less than this and since no increased revenue will be received in the new year the budget for 1929 can not be appreciably greater than that for the year which ends today.

Many departments already have submitted requests to Mr. West, who will turn them over to the finance committee, and all of them will ask for greater sums than the 1928 appropriations.

Mayor Ragsdale on taking office for the new year will appoint the finance committee which will on the same date begin consideration of the requests of the various city departments. Recommendations for appropriations will be presented to city council at its first meeting January 21.

The following table indicates the increases over 1928 asked by departments for the new year:

Department	1928	1929

GEORGIA POSTMASTERS PAY FOR OFFICES

also to officials of the republican organization of Georgia but without results. His letter said: "On or about the time the postmaster general dismissed the two Florida postmasters for buying jobs, I wrote the postmaster general telling him that I could furnish him positive evidence that the postoffice at Butler, Ga., was bought by Mr. Baizemore for $250. I did not receive any answer. A few days ago I suggested that he summon Mr. Baizemore, of Butler, and Professor E. S. Richardson, of Marshallville, Ga., adding if they fail to tell the truth, to call me."

"Professor Richardson, who is and has been chairman of the third district for more than 20 years, came to me saying that the Johnson-Grier bunch were not on good terms with him, and that he wanted me to see them about getting the Butler office for Mr. Baizemore. I finally agreed to help him. I saw Grier first as he was the known representative of H. L. Johnson. Grier wanted $500 for the Butler office. Richardson and Baizemore would not agree to $500. They got me to make a trip to Washington to see Johnson. I got many promises but did not get the office. So it hung fire until just after Johnson died. While he was here attending a committee meeting, Richardson and Baizemore got me to see him again, saying that Baizemore would pay $250 for the office. I submitted the proposition to Johnson, and he called in John T. Risher, his secretary, and said Risher would handle the deal. Risher said he wanted $150 cash and the other when Mr. New, postmaster general, named Baizemore. I finally got Risher to take $100 cash and the other when he got the job. Baizemore gave me the $100 to give Risher, and stood where he could see me pass the money. He got the job within about two weeks."

"It looks like if the postmaster general dismissed Florida men for buying offices he would dismiss the Georgia men for the same thing."

"Signed, E. H. Brinson."

"P. S. I know it has been so that you could not get these jobs without paying somebody for them. Four or five of these men—Davis et al, made money out of it."

The dates of the check stubs are from June 23, 1925, through June 9, 1928, and are mostly for salary payments to Johnson, Martin, Davis and office help, with a few for rent, incidentals and expenses. One check was for $75 to enable Davis to attend the funeral of Johnson in Washington. Records are also in the stubs of payments to various persons for expenses to meetings of the executive committee, and to others for political work in the state. John T. Risher, secretary to Johnson, also received checks for special work in Washington.

Practically all of the checks deal with the smaller postoffices in Georgia. Copies of the cards in the index show the amount to be contributed and the manner of payment.

As an example, the card for Walter R. Cannon, postmaster at Clayton, Ga., agreed to "contribute" $120 in 1929 at the rate of $10 per month. The card shows payments of $60 credited to him.

In 1925, March 3, according to the record, Hugh T. Cline, at Milledgeville, agreed to contribute $100. The card shows three payments of $22 each.

Senator Brookhart's report, which will be incorporated in the senate record, showed interesting discrepancies in the amount paid and paid by the various postmasters in the state. For example, B. Postmaster R. L. Williams, of Griffin, was credited with a payment of $10 monthly in 1928, while only one payment of $35 was listed by Mr. Postmaster J. M. Davis, of West Point. At the same time Miss Bessie Waldrup, postmistress at Jackson, paid the same monthly sum in 1927, as did Postmaster Williams, at Griffin, holding a more important office.

Not all of the federal postmasters paid their "contributions" in the same degree of regularity, it was revealed. Some of them skipped a few months without making up the deferred payment later.

Herewith is partial list of "contributions" by postmasters and others for the benefit of the republican state organization as given by the Brookhart report:

W. H. Astin, Palmetto, $7 monthly; T. H. Anthony, Shellman, five payments in 1927 aggregating $85;

C. L. Adair, Comer, $10 monthly; J. Allen, Lafayette, $10 monthly; George B. Appleby, Jefferson, $10 monthly; T. A. Bullock, Ochlocknee, $5 monthly; Robert Barron, Zebulon, $5 monthly; Mrs. Pauline Bowen, Cobbtown, $5 monthly; John R. Barrett, Demorest, four monthly payments of $25 each and one additional of $50; Mary Lou Burch, Eastman, $10 monthly; N. H. Bragg, Gray, $5 monthly; W. F. Boone, Basley, two payments of $50; Mrs. Stella Barrett, Union City, $7.50 monthly; John W. Berryhill, Lakeland, $70 assessment; G. C. Brantly, Lyons, $20 quarterly; S. R. Barton, White Plains, three payments totaling $65; W. M. Booth, Lexington, $6.50 monthly; W. H. Blitch, Statesboro, $5 monthly; John H. Barclay, Rome, one payment, $50; Frederick Bonner, Perry, three payments totaling $50; H. B. Broome, Favo, five payments totaling $38; C. Barker, Levey, assessment of $65; Charles Barnes, one month, $20; R. E. Barger, Gainesboro, one payment, $25; R. R. Bryant, Columbus, one payment, $15; R. W. Beard, Blakely, one payment, $10; W. H. Braselton, one payment, $50; R. P. Bennett, Muscota, one payment, $25; G. Boatright, former United States district attorney, Cordele, one payment, $50; A. F. Beacham, Glendale, assessment, $85; A. B. Black, Tifton, $10 monthly; J. D. Baston, Thomson, assessment, $100; C. W. Beardsley, Donaldsonville, assessment, $100; A. E. Brown, Deveraux, one payment, $37.50; C. W. Bazemore, Butler, mentioned in the Brinson letter to Senator Brookhart, one payment, $10; E. P. Cannon, Clayton, $10 monthly; G. H. Clark, Milan, assessment, $72; F. N. Carls, Flory Branch, assessment, $120; John T. Cagle, Ball Ground, assessment, $120; Mrs. L. K. Coleman, Graymont, to pay $70 at rate of $6 monthly; T. A. Drake, Iron City, assessment, $100; W. M. Carrollton, "will help out with about $130," according to notation; Ivey J. Newton, pledged to pay $100; John L. Carter, Rockingham, one payment, $65; T. W. Cobb, Warren, $150 monthly; H. T. Cline, Milledgeville, assessment $100 with notation saying "more will be paid if requested"; J. L. Dayton, Thomaston, $10 monthly; J. P. Freeman, Stone Mountain, $50 assessment with notation of "very good"; Robert W. Graves, Toccoa, one payment, $50; Mrs. J. E. Hays, postmistress at Montezuma, $10 monthly; Joseph D. Long, Bremen, five monthly payments of $25 each; H. K. Knowles, Cutbert, $10 monthly; P. Little, Macon, $10 monthly; E. H. Lawson, Sandersville, two payments totaling $90; J. T. Rose, Atlanta, collector of internal revenue, seven payments totaling $400, date not given; Paul L. Smith, Athens, assessed $150, pledged to be paid in installments of $45.50 monthly; H. T. George, Eatonton, $10 monthly.

Peru and Chile on the west coast have definite road building programs as have Uruguay and Brazil on the east coast. Argentina appears to have no definite program since the central section of that country already has a system of well-connected railroads and there are 400 miles of paved highways from Buenos Aires to shore resorts. Mexico, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua were said to be without road building programs, but Colombia and Venezuela are understood to have very definite programs.

A Pan-American highway through Latin America down the west coast of South America would be one of the most beautiful scenic roads in the world and one of the most interesting historically.

The United States already has initiated Pan-American conferences on highway development and the first of these gatherings which was attended by 140 South American engineers has stimulated much interest in the southern continent in road building.

In the development of air lines to the South American continent, the United States already is preparing to open the first link of an air mail route from Washington to Panama via Cuba, Colombia and Venezuela, and proposed Pan-American airway route, already has several airlines, but Ecuador has none. A beginning has been made in Peru in the development of airways and Chile has been undertaking the development of a north and south air line through government air services.

MRS. M. K. BINNIE, PIONEER ATLANTAN, SUCCUMBS SUNDAY

Mrs. Matilda Katherine Binnie, 89, of 687 York street, died Sunday night at local sanitarium after an illness of some time. She had been a native of Atlanta since the time of the war between the states and was one of the few women to remain in Atlanta during the battle of Atlanta. She was a member of the Third Baptist church.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. C. G. Loeffler, and two sons, Will and C. T. Thompson. Funeral arrangements will be announced later by Sam R. Greenberg and company.

COMMERCIAL SHIP CRASHES IN TEXAS AND 3 ARE KILLED

Graham, Texas, December 30.—(AP) Three persons, one a woman, were killed when a commercial airplane crashed two miles south of here today.

The dead are Roddy Curtin, pilot, Wichita Falls; Joe H. Morrison, Graham, and Miss Bettie Clyde, Sherman, daughter of the president of Austin college at Sherman.

The plane fell on the banks of a creek just after taking off from the airport. Curtin and Morrison were killed almost instantly. Miss Clyde died shortly after the crash.

Spectators were unable to account for the accident. The machine, which had been taking passengers on short trips all day, just left the ground with its two passengers and had not gained much altitude when it nosed over and crashed.

Benjamin Stern.

Benjamin Stern, 50, died Sunday night at a private sanitarium after an extended illness. Mr. Stern was a jeweler with a shop in the Forsyth building. He made his home at a local hotel. The body is being held at the undertaking establishment of Sam R. Greenberg and company pending the arrival of Mr. Stern's relatives.

CAUSE OF PELLAGRA IS FOUND AT LAST

Diet Is Sole Reason for Prevalence of Disease, Says Goldberger.

Washington, December 30.—(United News.)—Pellagra, dread disease which affects the skin and causes violent constitutional and nervous reactions, has been found due entirely to dietary deficiencies and in no way related to sanitary conditions, the U. S. public health service announced today after 20 years study of the disease.

At first pellagra was thought caused by an insect bite. Later, scientists advanced the theory that poor sanitary conditions were responsible for the disease.

It remained, however, for Dr. Joseph Goldberger, public health scientist, now, himself, suffering from a mysterious malady, to discover that pellagra was caused and could be controlled by diet.

During the 20 years study the health service found endemic pellagra was most common among children of from 2 to 15 years of age and that single women were relatively exempt from the disease.

Yeast Is Specific.

"The single woman is usually a wage earner, which may place her in a somewhat more advantageous position with respect to diet than her married or widowed sister," the service explained.

"The incidence of the disease was found to be markedly seasonal with 80 to 90 per cent of all cases having their onset within the period from April to July, due to the variation in diet brought about by seasonal modification of the food supply."

Dried yeast, which furnishes vitamins necessary to the healthy body, is one of the most common preventative of pellagra, the health service said.

Rain Expected Late Monday, Says Forecast

Showers coming as the aftermath of a cloudy forenoon are slated to fall on Atlanta and vicinity today, it was announced by the national weather bureau in Washington. Today will be somewhat warmer than heretofore in the past week, according to the prediction.

Temperatures Sunday ranged from a low, early Sunday morning, of 30 degrees to a high reading of 54 degrees during the middle part of the day.

Manufacturers of Cotton Enter New Year With Prospects for Success

Lincoln Baylies Declares Industry Faces Period of Expansion and Prices Permitting Profit.

Boston, December 30.—(AP)—Lincoln Baylies, president of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, said today there is a general feeling of confidence in the cotton industry as it approaches the new year, with indications pointing to an increasing use of cotton in wearing apparel and an even greater consumption of the more staple lines of merchandise by other industries.

"The past year began and closed with a fairly good volume of business," he said, "but there were many dull periods. Orders slackened in April, conditions were dull by June and continued so until after Labor day, when there was a distinct betterment until shortly before election. The latter part of November, however, showed a regain in buying activity, particularly in the gray goods market and a fairly general stiffening of prices, which has resulted in the industry reaching the end of the year with a feeling of confidence in the market situation."

"Finished goods have not experienced the recent activity to the same extent as gray goods. Printed goods have been more active than probably any other department in the piece-goods trade, and will undoubtedly continue to remain outstanding in popularity during the coming season."

"The cost of putting the mill's products into the hands of the consumer after it has left the mill is one of the big factors now placing the manufacturers at a disadvantage. Competition has already brought a great many of our mills to an increasingly wide usage of research. Not only has exhaustive research been made to discover further economies in the actual manufacture of the goods, but mills are constantly subjecting their yarns and dyes to chemical analysis to guard against deterioration in the quality of the goods and to discover new finishing colors that will give more satisfactory service.

"The proposed textile alliance federation is our brightest hope for the creation of an organization for scientific research which will be accessible to the entire industry."

145 WOMEN WIN IN LEGISLATURES OF 36 STATES

Washington, December 30.—(United News).—Women are coming into their own in politics, according to a nationwide survey made by the National League of Women Voters on November election results.

New state legislatures will have 145 women members in 38 states, a gain of 19 over the previous year, the survey showed.

The republicans are in the majority, with political representation divided as follows: Republicans, 100; democrats, 38; no party designation, 5; non-partisan, 2.

Outstanding among the achievements of women in the last elections were: The first woman was elected to the Iowa legislature.

Fifteen women will be serving as state senators.

Approximately 12 women re-elected to their fourth terms; 68 women who sat in the last legislatures were re-elected.

JOSEPH CRANKSHAW, SR. PASSES AWAY SUNDAY

Prominent Atlanta Jeweler
Succumbs to Stroke Suffered Dec. 10.

Joseph C. Crankshaw, Sr., passed away Sunday afternoon at a private sanitarium where he had been in a critical condition since December 10, when he suffered a stroke of paralysis.

Mr. Crankshaw had been a prominent jeweler in Atlanta for many years, in which business he had made countless friends who will mourn his death.

He was a brother of the late Charles W. Crankshaw.

Mr. Crankshaw is survived by his widow, who was Miss Ethel Holliday; his daughter, Miss Elizabeth Crankshaw; two sons, Joseph Crankshaw, Jr., and Weir Crankshaw; a grandson, Lawrence Crankshaw, and a sister, Mrs. Margaret Crankshaw Thomas.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

DIVORCEE IS HELD FOR SHOOTING LOVER

St. Louis, December 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Antoinette Abrams, 32, divorcee, was held by University City police for the fatal shooting of Jay A. Jenkins, a candy salesman, in their apartment in restricted University Park last night.

The shooting climaxed a lively celebration for friends who were observing their 15th wedding anniversary. Jenkins, who died in a hospital several hours after the shooting, declared it was an accident.

Mrs. Abrams was found clutching a .25 caliber automatic when police arrived. She explained in part the details of the shooting.

"We had an argument," she said. "When Jay is sober he is the finest man in the world. When he is drunk he is one of the meanest. He slapped me. Ever since I've been living with him he has beaten me. I was afraid he might attack me after he struck me and I got the gun out of the drawer and shot him."

Jenkins was struck by three bullets. He was unmarried. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. James Oscar Jenkins, of Matteson, Ill.

Mrs. Abrams was said by police to be well-to-do and with her divorced husband, who was in New Orleans, owned the apartment house where the shooting occurred as well as other property here. The husband, J. M. Abrams, was on his way to St. Louis tonight after an exchange of telegrams with his former wife.

Mr. and Mrs. William Milne, who were celebrating their wedding anniversary, fled the apartment with Mrs. Abrams' nine-year-old son when they heard the shooting.

Survey at Americus Shows Population Of More Than 10,900

Americus, Ga., December 30.—(Special).—A survey based on figures secured from local sources gives the present population of Americus as 10,912, which compares with 9,010 as shown in the 1920 census, a survey shows.

The excess of births over deaths in the city since 1920, numbers 789, according to the survey, and there has been an increase of 17 per cent since 1920 in the number of qualified voters here.

An increase of 20 per cent in the number of youths of school age is also shown, and an increase of 18 per cent in the number of active domestic water services is also revealed.

The increase in population is shown as 20 per cent, with population here divided as follows: Males, 5,122; females, 5,690; persons over 21 years of age, 6,337; persons over 10 years of age, 8,706, and persons occupied in gainful pursuits, 4,615, with a total population of 10,912.

The population of Americus and suburbs is estimated at 12,000.

R. A. Williams, 53.

Macon, Ga., December 30.—(AP)—Richard A. Williams, 53, realtor, head of the R. A. Williams Realty company, died at a local hospital at 4 o'clock this morning of pneumonia, following influenza.

Mr. Williams' death was the fourth among the prominent realtors of Macon who have died here within a month.

MRS. E. H. BARNES IS LAID TO REST SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Funeral services for Mrs. Edward H. Barnes, beloved Atlanta social and civic leader, who died suddenly at her home Friday afternoon, were conducted at the residence, 818 Juniper street, Sunday afternoon. Dean Raymond de Ornes, of St. Philip's cathedral, read the services and burial was in Oakland cemetery.

Mrs. Barnes' sudden death came as a loss to Atlanta's religious, social and civic circles, in all of which spheres of activity she was prominent. Her work with the Red Cross at Fort McPherson during the world war was particularly outstanding. She was also identified with the work of the Atlanta Woman's club, the Atlanta chapters of the U. S. R. and the U. D. C. and was a devout member of St. Philip's.

Surviving Mrs. Barnes are her husband, a son, Mackenzie D. Barnes; a sister, Miss Mollie Bostwick, and a nephew, Dr. Carlton Leidy. She was the daughter of the late Arthur D. Bostwick, of Columbus.

W. M. KIRKPATRICK, SR. DIED EARLY SUNDAY

After more than half a century's residence in Atlanta and Decatur, Wallace M. Kirkpatrick, Sr., 67, of 80 West 26th street, died early Sunday morning following an illness of several weeks.

Mr. Kirkpatrick was prominent in business as president of the former firm of Hightower-Kirkpatrick Hardware company, and was widely known throughout the state among associates in the hardware and farm supply trade.

He lived for years on Gordon street, he was long an elder and devoted member of the West End Presbyterian church. Latterly he lived on Peachtree road until the past year and was an active member of the North Avenue church of that denomination. Though inactive of late years, he was a member of the details of the Knights of Pythias.

Mr. Kirkpatrick was the son of James Wallace Kirkpatrick and Elizabeth H. Kirkpatrick, of Decatur, Ga.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Leila O'Keefe, of Atlanta; a son, Mr. Charles F. Kirkpatrick, of Decatur; a son, Wallace M. Kirkpatrick, Jr., of New York city, and four daughters, Miss Edith Kirkpatrick, of Atlanta; Mrs. Eugene Wrigley, of Miami; Mrs. H. Fenwick Dunlop, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Stanley Fiege, of Jackson, Miss.

Funeral arrangements, in charge of H. M. Patterson & Son, will be announced later.

FOUR GENERALS SERVE IN FUNERAL OF ARMY SERGEANT

Washington, December 30.—(AP)—The unusual honor of four general officers of the army and a colonel and a major acting as honorary pallbearers for an army sergeant will be bestowed tomorrow at the burial in Arlington National cemetery of Staff Sergeant Joseph Spel, who participated in seven battles in the world war, was wounded three times and was awarded the croix de guerre by France.

Spel, who had been on recruiting duty at Syracuse, N. Y., died in the Fort Totten, N. Y., hospital on Christmas eve within a few weeks of a retirement after 30 years of army service.

"Taps" tomorrow for the sergeant will find beside his grave Major General Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the army and former commander of the first division in France with which Spel served; Major General B. Frank Cheatham, quartermaster general of the army; Brigadier General Campbell King, assistant chief of staff for personnel; Brigadier General Frank Parker, assistant chief of staff for operations and training; Colonel Hjalmar Erickson, retired; and Major A. M. Patch, formerly lieutenant-colonel of the Eighteenth Infantry, in company "I," of which Spel served. Like General Summerall, the other officers formerly held high commands in the first division.

Spel was born in Saxony, Germany, in 1880.

C. H. PEACOCK, STATE SENATOR, SUCCUMBS

Georgia Solon Dies at His Home at Eastman Following Long Illness.

Eastman, Ga., December 30.—(Special).—C. H. Peacock died at his home here Sunday morning after a prolonged illness.

He was state senator from this district and attended the last session of the general assembly despite his illness.

He was president of the Citizens' bank and of the Eastman cotton mill, having been president of the bank since its organization about 30 years ago. He also was one of the largest property owners of Dodge county. Mr. Peacock was 74 years of age, and was one of the pioneer citizens of Eastman. He has done more in a moral, religious and financial way in the upbuilding of Eastman and Dodge county than probably any man who has ever lived here.

He was one of the pillars of the Methodist church of which he was a member and was one of the most liberal donors to religious causes in this section. Early in his life he married Miss Ophelia Edwards of Liberty county. She died about a year ago. He is survived by the following children: C. H. Peacock, Jr., Mrs. N. C. Smiley and Mrs. Julia Fitzgerald, of Eastman; and Mrs. W. L. Mathers, of Atlanta; and the following grandchildren: Charles Smiley, Elizabeth Smiley and Idoline Fitzgerald, of Eastman; and Miss Martha Dean Mathers, of Atlanta; and two brothers, W. L. and J. O. Peacock, of Macon.

The funeral will be held at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon at the Methodist church in this city. Services will be conducted by Rev. W. U. Blitch, of Vidalia. Interment in Woodlawn cemetery.

In Office 33 Years.

Juliette, Ga., December 30.—(Special).—Judge J. Ponder Carson, of Forsyth, claims the distinction of being probably the oldest justice of the peace in the state in point of service. He has been serving as justice of the peace of the Forsyth district for the past 33 years and he has just been re-elected to this office for another year.

D. L. Tims Dies.

Macon, Ga., December 30.—(AP)—D. L. Tims, 43 years old, who was born in Jackson, Miss., and had resided here 14 months, died today of pneumonia at a local hospital. The body was shipped to a brother, C. W. Tims, at Red Bay, Ala.

LAST RITES TODAY FOR J. R. BUCHANAN, VETERAN OF GRAY

Funeral services for J. R. Buchanan, 80-year-old Confederate veteran who died Saturday at the Confederate Soldiers' home, will be conducted at 1:30 o'clock today at Spring Hill chapel. The body will be removed to the Marietta Confederate Veterans' cemetery for burial immediately after the services.

Mr. Buchanan, who was the fifth to be swept from the thinning ranks at the home within three weeks, entered the institution about four years ago and had become a figure well known to visitors and well liked by his old companions-in-arms.

A native of Cobb county, he enlisted in Company E, of the Second Georgia state troops at the age of 14. Despite his youth he soon became a valued member of the regiment through his services as a scout. His thorough acquaintance with the terrain of Fulton and Cobb county made it possible for him to do this highly hazardous service in a more than satisfactory manner.

After extensive service he was captured by the union forces when the Battle of Atlanta was at its height and was not released until 1865. He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. C. L. Pridgen, Mrs. W. B. Wood and Mrs. C. L. Long; a son, M. A. Buchanan, and a sister, Mrs. G. A. Webb.

BOY WITH "BIKE" LODGED IN THROAT REPORTED BETTER

Cincinnati, Ohio, December 30.—(AP)—His condition improved slightly over that of yesterday, but still precarious, 18-month-old Frankie Brooks today continued his fight for life against a double peril—pneumonia and a miniature motorcycle which lodged in his throat.

Hospital attaches said an operation for removal of the obstruction would be attempted as soon as the child's condition permitted.

The boy lodged in the throat two weeks ago when he was eating popcorn in which the motorcycle had been placed as a "prize."

LODGE TO INSTALL OFFICERS TONIGHT

Installation ceremonies for the recently elected officers of the Capital City lodge, O. E. S., will be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Mrs. Hazel Holmes will act as installing officer, assisted by Mrs. Rose Mae Ashby. Dr. Thomas Fowler and Mrs. Pearl Baker will give special songs. Following the ceremonies a watch party will be held to greet the New Year.

NAT KAISER, PROMINENT LOCAL JEWELER, DIES

Well-Known Atlanta Business Man Succumbs to Long Illness.

Nat Kaiser, 67, well-known Atlanta jeweler, died Sunday afternoon at his residence, 1107 St. Augustine place, after an extended illness.

Mr. Kaiser established the jewelry company which bears his name several years ago. He has been prominently identified with the jewelry business for many years. He was a member of Gate City lodge, No. 2, F. & A. M.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11:30 o'clock this morning at the chapel of Sam R. Greenberg and company. Dr. David Marx will be in charge.

Ben Morris Burial.

Valdosta, Ga., December 30.—(Special).—Funeral services were conducted Saturday afternoon for Ben Morris, 68 years old. Elder J. L. Harris, of the Primitive Baptist church, officiated.

Mr. Morris is survived by three daughters, Mrs. W. H. Haven, of Brunswick; Mrs. Eva Morris Cheek and Mrs. J. O. Horton, of Valdosta; two sons, Levy Morris, of Valdosta, and Archie Morris, of Tallahassee, Fla.; and three sisters, Mrs. Minnie Geiger, Miss Artie Morris and Mrs. Florence Burts, of Fitzgerald, and one brother, Archie Morris, of Albany.

Interment was made at Remerton cemetery.

President and Mrs. Coolidge Enjoy Georgia Vacation

approach by land was a 12-mile winding road through the woods, which at times became little more than a foot path.

After dinner tonight, the president was to go aboard the Zapala, moored a short distance off the mainland, to spend the night, returning to the lodge and game preserve at dawn for a wild turkey shoot.

COOLIDGE PARTY ON MAINLAND.

Floyd's Neck, Ga., December 30.—(P)—Well after nightfall President and Mrs. Coolidge arrived at the mainland hunting lodge here of Howard E. Coffin, whose guests they are on their midwinter vacation in Georgia. Some difficulty was had in bringing the Coffin yacht, the Zapala, to the dock because of darkness and shoal water, but the craft was finally tied up without mishap.

Shortly after reaching land, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge went ashore for a brief inspection of the hunting lodge and the surrounding game preserve. In a few minutes they returned to the yacht for dinner, the main dish of which was wild turkey. The two turkeys which the president shot Thursday on Little Sapelo Island were served.

Early tomorrow morning the president is to enjoy a hunt for wild turkeys on the Coffin preserve. The party plans to start into the woods shortly after sunrise, returning to the yacht for breakfast and then proceeding to St. Mary's island.

On the cruise from St. Mary's island to the lodge today, the party went ashore at St. Mary's, Ga., to inspect the ruins of an old Spanish mission and then proceeded up the St. Mary's river to the plantation of Charles S. Barrett, an old friend of the chief executive. The party stopped at the plantation for less than a quarter of an hour and after reboarding the yacht, resumed the trip to the hunting lodge.

On the game preserve, Mr. Coolidge is without any direct means of outside communication. There is no telephone at the lodge and by water it is a considerable voyage to the nearest town. By land a tortuous and roughly cut trail leads through the woods and some swamp land for a distance of 12 miles to the town of Woodbine.

ST. MARY'S, GA., GREETED MR. AND MRS. COOLIDGE

St. Marys, Ga., December 30.—(Special).—President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge and other guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Coffin, of Sapelo Island, visited St. Mary's Sunday afternoon on Coffin's yacht Seapolo, conveyed by the government engineers' yacht of Savannah and two coast guard boats some hours before this fleet arrived.

Mr. Jones, a nephew of Mr. Coffin, Colonel Starling and other secret service men came in on a speed boat and were met at the wharf by C. S.

Arnold, who drove the party over the road that would be used by the president's party when they visited the ruins of the old Spanish mission, Santa Maria Jales Yamosos, that is only a few miles out of town.

The walls of this building have withstood the elements for several centuries and are in such a wonderful state of preservation that they are attracting a great deal of attention and the desire to see these ruins was largely responsible for the visit of the president to St. Mary's.

The president's party were met at the wharf by a committee of welcome, composed of Mayor J. F. Bailey, Jr., Colonel and Mrs. S. C. Townsend, Mrs. W. C. King, C. S. Arnold, G. W. Brandon, J. R. Bachlott, Q. W. Hoff, Captain Wesley Robinson and F. E. Arnold, for and in behalf of the city.

The president's party immediately took cars, that citizens had provided and drove through the city and out to the old mission, driving by several houses of interest, among them going a residence that had once been on the stopping place of Aaron Burr and at another time had been visited by General Winfield Scott.

Both the president and Mrs. Coolidge seemed greatly interested in the mission ruins and spent 20 minutes in examining them. They were then driven back to St. Mary's where they embarked and sailed for Point Peter, the site of old Fort Pickens, which was destroyed by the English Admiral Cockburn about 1814. This was after peace had been declared between this country and England, but unfortunately Admiral Cockburn did not know this.

Point Peter is now owned by Arthur Lucas and Charles S. Barrett, until recently president of the National Farmers union, who is an old friend of President Coolidge.

At Point Peter the president's party were welcomed by both of these gentlemen at the rustic hunting lodge of Mr. Lucas. Only a short time was spent at Point Peter when the party again embarked and sailed around to Cabbin Bluff hunting lodge on the large game preserve of Mr. Coffin.

In the brief stay here the president and party were seen by many hundreds of Georgians and Floridians. The town was decorated with flags and bunting in honor of the occasion.

SUSPECTED YOUTH TO FIGHT MURDER

young Vanderburg engaged three attorneys, headed by Marvin Ritch, of Charlotte, Mr. Ritch, due to the fact that the youth is a minor, secured a court order from Superior Judge Harding approving the employment.

Find Another Axe.

The first move of the attorney was to employ a private detective to work in behalf of the defense. He announced, also that a second axe had been found in the ruins of the house. The Vanderburgs are believed to have been killed with an axe found in the ruins at the spot where the bedrooms of the house are located. The second axe, Mr. Ritch said, was found under the ruins of the kitchen, near the spot where the suspected youth says he placed it when he took it into the house Thursday night.

The attorney also announced that despite statements made by neighbors at yesterday's session of the inquest, there was no thought of an insanity plea in event a forgery charge is lodged against Vanderburg. He declared a plea of not guilty would be made.

"I have several eyewitnesses to the fact that a small boy dug a second axe out of the ashes by the kitchen stove," said Mr. Ritch in announcing the finding of a second axe. "It was right where Jacob Vanderburg said he left his axe when he brought it into the house Thursday night to keep it from being stolen."

Estate Worth $200,000.

Declaring the state could not prove a motive for the killing, the attorney said that he could "show that other could have had a motive." "I do not yet possess the evidence to show that such a motive as I have in mind impelled the individual I have in mind to kill and burn. In my opinion the killings were the culmination of a long-standing feud and a burning desire to redress old-time grievances."

Just what this feud may have been was not disclosed. J. D. Vanderburg was one of the wealthiest farmers in this county. He owned 200 acres of farm land, some of it within the Gastonia city limits, and is reputed to have held quite a few mortgages on other real estate. His estate is estimated to be worth as high as $200,000.

Crowds of curious today continue to flock to the site of the killings which are becoming known as the "massacre of Gaston county." Souvenir hunters were plentiful.

YALE STUDENT DIES SAVING GIRL-FRIEND

Ice Gives Away as He and His Companion Skated on Pond.

Cranford, N. J., December 30.—(AP)—Norman S. Hall, 24 years old, of Neptune, junior at Yale university and member of the 1927-28 football team, was drowned today when he and a girl companion crashed through the ice of Normanshagen pond while skating. He assisted in the rescue of the girl before succumbing.

Hall was skating with Miss Vera Genz, of Roselle Park, at one end of the pond when the ice gave way. Leonard Genz, also a Yale student and brother of the girl, and another man started to their aid but the ice cracked and parted beneath them.

Hall swam with Miss Genz to the side of the man and her brother and then sank. The three were pulled from the water with the aid of ropes thrown to them by persons on shore. An expert swimmer, Hall served as life guard at Asbury Park the past summer.

Hall was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Hall, of Neptune. During his freshman year at Yale he played on the track, wrestling and football teams. The past season he was guard on the varsity eleven. He was a member of Sigma Delta Psi and Delta Kappa Epsilon.

Chicago, December 30.—(P)—Joseph Drew, 28 years old, of Devils Lake, N. D., a Northwestern university medical student, was drowned today when he fulfilled a boast to take an early morning swim in the icy waters of Lake Michigan.

Drew attended a party at a north side home. In a conversation Drew declared he frequently went swimming in the lake in winter, and to dispel skepticism decided to go in immediately.

He went to the beach nearby and entered the water while members of the party looked on. Half an hour later Drew disappeared.

NEGRO, ATTACKED, TELLS OF RESCUE BY NEGRO GUNMEN

Apparently not satisfied with having knocked him from his bicycle with their automobile, three negroes who struck J. B. Maddox, a young negro messenger boy, of 20-A Bell street, at North Jackson and Lyons streets Sunday night, stopped their automobile, got out and proceeded to beat their victim as he lay on the ground, according to reports to police.

Maddox told officers that his tormentors were dispersed and forced to flee by bullets from the guns of two other negroes who happened to be passing.

The alleged victim of the accident said he was not hurt by the fall from his bicycle. He stated that the two negroes who proved his benefactors were walking along the sidewalk near where he fell and as his tormentors started to belabor him they drew guns, sent several shots toward the bullies, who scuttled for the safety of their automobile and fled. The shooting duo then continued calmly on down the street, without giving their names or stopping to investigate the accident, Maddox said.

VOLUME OF TRADE IN BONDS SMALL

New York, December 30.—(P)—Investment buying supported the bond market during the past week, but the volume of trading was small and price trends irregular. Advances of cash money to 12 per cent and of time money to 8 per cent or above, combined with expectations that credit conditions would be stringent and money rates high during the first weeks of 1929, served to discourage any wide increase of commitments.

New public offerings declined to $27,104,000, about half the total of the previous week and about one-third that of the corresponding week of 1927. The Christmas holiday probably was a factor for dullness in the market for new, as well as listed, issues.

Utilities were outstanding among the few issues to seek higher prices during the week, especially International Telephone and Telegraph convertible 4 1/2s and Debenture 4 1/2s, all establishing new top prices on fairly steady buying. Coppers, one-time leaders of the market, were inclined to heaviness during most of the week. Rails were highly irregular, although improved earnings reports of some carriers lifted the price of stocks and caused a sympathetic advance in the bonds. Oils firmed up late in the week when company obligations brightened on announcement that the Cuban sugar restriction scheme would be lifted. Convertibles moved up and down with prices of their respective stocks, but generally within narrow limits.

BRADSTREET'S WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

Bank clearings in the United States for the week ending December 27, a holiday week, as reported to Bradstreet's Journal, aggregated $10,562,037,000, as against $13,900,475,000 week before last, a full week, and $8,558,371,000 in last week last year, which also was a holiday week. Last week's total shows a decrease of 24.6 per cent from week before last, but a gain of 23.4 per cent over the like week a year ago. Canadian clearings aggregated $306,507,000, against $379,480,000 week before last and $306,725,000 in last week last year. FREQUENT CHANGES IN CURB MARKET

New York, December 30.—(P)—Wide fluctuations and frequent changes in the market's tone, due to the tension which prevailed all week in the call money market, marked the past week's session of 5 trading days on the curb exchange.

The money stringency for a time curbed bullish activities and brought heavy liquidation. Nearly all the losses were sustained in the fore part of the week and most of them were wiped out in Friday's and Saturday's sessions.

The Ford issues showed continued strength until the end of the week, when the English corporation issue ran into selling and closed about 5 points below the week's high. Saturday's closing price was still nearly 4 times the offering price.

Most of the active public utilities established new high levels for the year on buying influenced by the record-breaking electrical output in 1928, and trade forecasts of an even larger gain next year. Electric Bond & Share was the most active.

Oil shares fluctuated in a rather erratic manner, although Vacuum and a few other issues bettered their previous 1928 high prices. Most of the merchandising issues displayed a strong undertone as a result of reports of record-breaking holiday trade, and rumors of new combinations. Kinnear Stores will be taken over by National Bellas Hess company. Concurrent strength of Neisner Brothers and Isaac Silver & Brothers led to reports that merger negotiations were pending between those two concerns.

Some fresh buying came into the airplane shares on the announcement of a further expansion in air mail and passenger services next year. Rubber issues turned heavy on reports of a downward trend in the prices of several specialties went to new highs. Among them were U. S. Freight, United Carbon certificates, and Goldman Sachs Trading corporation. New Jersey Zinc was a feature in the mining group, advancing more than 20 points.

BUSINESS REVIEW OF THE PAST WEEK

New York, December 30.—(P)—Business passed through the final week of 1928 with seasonal and inventory shutouts less marked than usual, and high hopes held out for another period of prosperity in 1929.

High money rates are the only cloud on the business horizon. To date, ample funds appear to have been available for all legitimate commercial needs at fairly moderate rates, but fears exist that a revival of speculative stock market activity and a further expansion in brokers' borrow-

WEEKLY REVIEW OF COTTON MARKET

New Orleans, December 30.—(P)—Holiday dullness has been the main characteristic of the cotton market during the past week. There was very little disposition on the part of traders to enter upon new ventures and such evening up as was considered desirable had been accomplished during the previous week. With trading reduced to a minimum it was only natural that price fluctuations should be narrow.

Despite the fact that Monday was the last notice day for December contracts and that Wednesday was the first notice day for the January option the liquidating processes had comparatively little effect on values.

Notwithstanding rather large tenders Wednesday on January contracts the market instead of showing declines for the week actually showed a trifling net gain.

Steadiness of the market was due in large measure to the prompt stoppage of notices or transfer of interest in January to later months. This switching process went on with very little effect on values. Such remaining liquidation by tired longs as developed was offset by shorts covering and some trade buying.

The market was further supported by the continued good exports of cotton from southern ports and by private estimates of consumption for the season which generally made the total as large or nearly as large as last year, pointing to a final carryover at the end of the season of about 800,000 bales less than a year ago. The total exports for the season now show an excess over last year of 842,000 bales.

Another stimulating influence at the close of the week was the reported good demand for cotton goods particularly print cloths, despite the holiday season and the inventory period.

The following shows the high, low and closing sales in the New Orleans futures market during the past week compared with a year ago:

	High	Low	Close	Year
January	19.63	19.46	19.55	19.67
March	19.70	19.53	19.61	19.66

15,000 Actors Out of Work Seek Solution of Disaster Facing Gotham Stages

Cut Stage Hands' Pay Is Cry of Majority; Peaches and Peggy Now Unemployed.
BY CHARLES M. McCANN.
New York, December 30.—(United News).—Plans for the administration of metaphorical monkey glands to the drooping drama will be discussed Monday at a meeting of representatives of actors and theater managers.

Fifteen thousand actors and actresses are out of work. Theaters in many large cities are dark or playing to audiences whose presence serves only to accentuate the great open spaces of seats about them.

At the same time movie houses are prosperous, and here people take it as a matter of routine to be told when they buy tickets at the larger houses that they must stand in line half an hour to obtain seats.

Stars, competent and well-known lesser lights of the stage firmament, chorus girls and vaudeville performers are among those out of work—10,000 from the legitimate stage and 5,000 from the vaudeville stage, according to Varieties, the authoritative theatrical weekly.

Among the unemployed are Peaches Browning and Peggy Hopkins Joyce, Peaches' next show "Laid an Egg," at about the same time people showed a final determination to stay away from the melodrama, "The Squealer," Saturday night, after a short run. Peaches' show was termed by critics generally as terrible. Peggy's "The French farce," apparently people just didn't think of her as a serious actress, though she won national fame as a Zeigfeld star.

New the two girls are "at liberty." Peggy has nothing to sustain her but the jewels, bank accounts and real estate she accumulated from her four or five millionaire husbands. Peaches must live on her memories, financial and sentiment, as the girl wife of white-haired "Daddy" Browning and the hunking goods he bought to amuse her on her honeymoon.

The tragedy of the situation for most of the girls' associates is even more poignant. Many of them are destitute. Some of them cannot pay their board bills, and face eviction or living "on the nod" from the many good-hearted and usually poor landladies among those who run theatrical boarding houses. Some of them are under-nourished. Few can maintain the sartorial "front" that they regard essential for their success in obtaining jobs.

The committee that meets Monday is headed by William A. Brady, for the manager, and Frank Gilmore, president of the Actors' Equity association, for the players.

Brady has a plan—the appointment of a theater manager who will rank in his own sphere with Will Hays, of the movies, or Judge Landis, of baseball.

He says the main trouble is lack of organization, and of cooperation among managers, actors, musicians and stage hands. Petty jealousies and minor bickering, he says, account for much of the trouble that reaches everyone connected with the theater—for the managers, under their diamond shirt studs, are suffering too, in the place where managers suffer most. Here they usually keep their profits not far from their hearts.

The managers have many suggestions to make—lower wages for actors and stage hands and musicians and possibly a small cut in theater ticket prices, now at 50 cents. The actors want is work. The stage hands

WIFE BATTLES LAW TO FREE HUSBAND

Declares Spouse Innocent of Coffee Murder and Seeks Proof.

Mobile, Ala., December 30.—(P)—A hearty little woman of Calvert, mother of two girls and wife of a man accused of murder, who for years has battled beside her mate to earn a livelihood, has begun a battle which she is confident will end in his exoneration.

She is Mrs. Ida Bedwell, wife of Albert Bedwell, who is accused in a warrant of having murdered C. C. Coffee, aged Mobilian who has been missing from a Clarke county hunting camp since November 12. There is nothing furtive about Mrs. Bedwell's defense of her husband. Instead, she openly challenges his accusers to prove their charges and in her single-handed investigation of the case she has built a wall of alibi about Bedwell which appear invulnerable.

Action had been the keynote of her defense of Bedwell and she said last night that unless the machinery of the law is placed into motion immediately to furnish him a means of proving his innocence of the crime with which he is charged she will institute habeas corpus proceedings without delay.

However, she said she has been promised by Solicitor Joe Pelham, of Clarke county, that it is possible to arrange for Bedwell to furnish bond within a few days. This is the only other procedure that will save the feelings of Mrs. Bedwell because, besides being anxious to have her husband liberated, she is indignant at his arrest.

But there is one weak spot in her stoicism and bold aggressiveness. It is her inability to discuss with her husband the case in which he has become entangled.

"They let me talk to him," she explained, "but they wouldn't let me say anything about the Coffee case. And that's what I wanted to ask him about. I know he didn't kill anybody or have anything to do with killing anybody, but I wanted him to tell me where he was when Mr. Coffee disappeared."

But despite this handicap, Mrs. Bed-

well has gone ahead with her investigation and claims to have witnessed of unquestionable character who will testify that he was not in the vicinity of Hay's Lake the day Coffee disappeared, and that his movements the two days following have been determined. All of this evidence, she believes, will prove Bedwell innocent of the crime with which he is charged.

ARMOUR FERTILIZER PLANT IN MAINE DESTROYED BY FIRE

Searsport, Maine, December 29.—(P)—The huge plant of the Armour Fertilizer company of Chicago, holding 20,000 tons of phosphate ready for shipment, and 100,000 new barrels, was destroyed by fire here today. Three buildings of the American Agricultural Chemical company also burned. The loss was estimated in excess of $500,000.

GESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

PLANS WILL SOME-TIMES FAIL.

Thorton W. Burgess.
If plans will sometimes fail
to be of no avail.
—Reddy Fox.

Reddy Fox thought to know. He has plans bring naught but failure and time again. But just as he goes on making plans right in this, too. Most of the time in this life are obtained
by careful planning.

Reddy Fox had very carefully worked out a plan to catch Peter Rabbit.
It was a plan that was anything but simple. To begin with, he had to get Peter by telling him of good things to be found up in Farmer Brown's dooryard. He knew Peter so well that he knew Peter never, never could resist the temptation to go up and get some of those goodies at the first opportunity.
When Reddy had left Peter he had gone in quite the opposite direction from Farmer Brown's dooryard. But now he was back, and he could look down across the Green Meadows, toward the dear Old Briar-patch.

It was a beautiful winter night.
Everything was white with snow.
Lovely Mistress Moon was flooding
it all with soft silvery light. As a matter of fact, it was almost as light
as midday. Reddy had patiently waited a long time behind the henhouse. But at last he was rewarded.
He saw a little black speck out on the snowy Green Meadows. It seemed to bob up and down. Reddy chuckled.

"Here he comes!" said he to himself. "That is Peter Rabbit or I'm no Fox. He's coming up to Farmer
Brown's dooryard. I do hope Mrs.
Brown threw out some more cabbage leaves. If Peter once finds some cabbage leaves he'll become so busy filling that big stomach of his that he will forget everything else. It will be no trouble at all to steal up and catch him. Even if there are no
cabbage leaves, it ought to be an easy matter to catch him. He'll poke around the barn and he's almost sure
to come over here by the henhouse."

Meanwhile Peter was bobbing along across the snow-covered Green Meadows lippy-lippy-lippy-lip. He was in a hurry to get up to Farmer Brown's dooryard. Yes, sir, he was in a very great hurry. He knew that once he got up there he could find places to at least hide behind if there should be any danger. Reddy Fox watched him. He saw him start up the Long Lane. Then for a while he couldn't see him. So Reddy watched the upper end of the Long Lane where it entered Farmer Brown's dooryard.

Presently Peter appeared. The mouth of Reddy Fox began to water.
He was tempted—sorely tempted—to rush out right then. He was sure that he could catch Peter before Peter

"Here he comes!" said he to himself.

could find a place of safety. But to make doubly sure he waited. Peter came into Farmer Brown's dooryard
and hopped over toward the house.
He was looking this way and looking
that way, not for danger, but for cabbage leaves. There were none out.
Reddy Fox began to steal around the henhouse, keeping very close to it in the Black Shadows. His tongue was actually hanging out of his mouth
with eagerness. "Peter Rabbit is as good as caught," muttered he to himself. "This time there will be no escape for Peter. He has laughed at me for the last time."

Just at that very instant Peter
suddenly bounded in another direction.
Reddy stopped short. There was what looked like a Black Shadow following every move that Peter made. Peter dodged again. Then, running as only Peter can run when he is badly frightened, he made straight for Farmer Brown's barn. That shadow was right at his heels only it was in the air. Reddy Fox ground his teeth with rage. He knew that Black Shadow could be none other than Hooty the Owl. Then he grinned
again. He remembered that Farmer Brown's barn was closed. If Peter kept on he would come straight to where Reddy was crouching. The barn shut Reddy's view off, but he was untroubled. He expected Peter to bob into sight any minute and when he did he would be near enough
to catch in a few bounds.

But Peter didn't appear. Something had gone wrong. Could it be that Hooty had caught him?

This matter of the family wash is one
of those things that
help a household to run smoothly—or
tangle up the works
—depending on who
does it for you.

When you know it's going to come back
on time, rain or shine—

when you're sure every piece will be spotlessly
clean and white every week—

when your health is protected, your clothes made germ-free and pure by methods of hospital sanitation—

and when all this service comes at a price no
higher than the old-fashioned way—

then—you have the family wash problem put in its proper place.

These laundries handle your family wash that way.

Try one of our five family wash services this year—and see how proudly you can face old Father Time next New Year's Day!

A great factor
has been a discovery made some 25
years ago. Medical research found a cause of excess fat. It lies in weakness of a gland which largely controls nutrition. Too much of the food goes to fat.
Modern physicians in treating obesity now feed that gland substance. And that is the main factor embodied in Mar-
mola prescription tablets.

Marmola was perfected by a famous medical laboratory. Its chief factor is a gland food. People have used it for over 20 years—millions of boxes of it.
Users have told the results to others—
the loss in weight, the gain in health

The Baffle Stories

Who Murdered Ellington Breese?

NUMBER 1.

Suspicion of guilt of the murder is narrowed down to two men. Which of them committed the crime and how do you know it? Examine carefully the following established facts, then answer the questions put at the end of the problem.

Philadelphia was shocked on the morning of June 5, 1925, by the news of the murder of a distinguished citizen. Ellington Breese, founder and president of the Breese Chemical works of that city, had been murdered by poison gas generated in his bedroom during the night.

The police investigation revealed the following pertinent facts:

Breese had been found dead in his bed at 8 o'clock in the morning by his negro servant, who for years had aroused him at that hour. On the mantelpiece (there was no fireplace) the police found a glass flask of about one quart capacity. Its stopper was missing. It was the kind of glass vessel familiar to any chemical laboratory. Experts said that one chemical poured upon another would have generated the poison gas immediately, and that diffusion in the room must have followed quickly. Neither on the glass flask nor on other objects were fingerprints found.

Although both windows, screened, had been up eight inches from the bottom, the practically instantaneous effects of the gas had killed every living thing in the bedroom. Breese's pet bullfinch lay dead in its cage. Half a dozen flies and mosquitoes lay dead on the window sills. The dark green shades at the windows were found drawn down nearly to the bottom of the lower window sash, dimming the murder chamber, though the sun shone brightly outside.

The wavering finger of suspicion began to point with equal emphasis at two young men, each of whom was connected with Ellington Breese's business and had had enough laboratory experience to have manufactured the deadly gas.

E. Breese Walters, nephew and only surviving relative of the murdered man, was one suspect. Adam Boardman, Breese's confidential secretary, was the other. Examined his innocence, each to a degree had an alibi. According to the police investigation, so far as could be determined, both had good records, no debts or entanglements. Both seemed deeply affected by the tragedy.

Neither man seemed capable of committing such a cowardly crime. Yet the police reflected upon the terms of Breese's will, which divided half his estate—about a half million dollars—between the favorite nephew and the devoted employee. The other half of the estate Breese had bequeathed to charity. The terms of the will, drawn five years before, had never been a secret.

Walters and Boardman had maintained cordial but not close relations while in the employ of Breese. Each expressed confidence in the innocence of the other.

The coroner examined the body at 9:30 a. m. and declared that Breese had been dead at least four hours, and possibly for as long as 10 hours. The position of the body in the bed indicated to a certainty that death had overtaken Breese while in his bed, to which he had been confined by a slight illness.

The police, cherishing a uniform suspicion of Walters and Boardman, decided that they would know the murderer when they knew approximately the hour in which the poison gas was generated in Breese's bedroom.

Boardman, the secretary, had been with Breese until a little after 11:30 p. m. He admitted it, and his leaving the house about a quarter to 12 was confirmed by the testimony of old Mrs. Grew, Breese's joyous nurse and housekeeper, whose room was near Breese's on the second floor. Boardman had been discussing business matters with his employer, who was held up in bed convalescing from gripple. He admitted returning to Breese's bedroom for a moment after first leaving it, in order, he said, to secure briefcase which he had forgotten. At that time, he said, he put out the bedroom light at Breese's request, and closed the door upon leaving. And after leaving Breese's home, Boardman went straight to his own. He shared one floor of an old mansion with two other young men. Through the rest of the night and until the body was found his alibi was perfect.

Walters had returned unexpectedly early from Washington, D. C., at 1 o'clock in the morning. Mrs. Grew heard him enter, came out and spoke to him on the second floor landing and asked if there was anything she might do. Walters said he was not hungry and would go straight to bed. He asked about his uncle's health, heard that Boardman had been there until nearly midnight attending to details of the business, and observed that his uncle must be recovering nicely from his gripple if he could remain at work so late. He went upstairs to his room on the third floor.

Mrs. Grew, who was suffering from rheumatism, returned to her room on the second floor, read for a while, and then went to sleep until 2:30 a. m., she believed. From that time until the discovery of the murder, Walters' claim of innocence, like Boardman's, had no support from other testimony than his own.

In short, the police suspected, and their suspicions proved well founded, that if Breese died before midnight it was Boardman who liberated the gas that killed him; and that if Breese died after midnight, then Walters was the slayer of his uncle.

You have now all the evidence from which the Philadelphia police shrewdly fixed the approximate time of the crime and thereby the identity of the murderer.

Note: The solution to the above crime is printed herewith upside down, so that the reader will be enabled to follow his own clues and make his own deductions, before referring to the published answer.

In 1928, Walters and Boardman were both in the city of Philadelphia. Walters, who was a nephew of Breese, was a young man of about 25 years of age. Boardman, who was a secretary of Breese, was a young man of about 30 years of age. Both were well educated and had good records. Walters was a member of the Breese family and had been living with them for many years. Boardman had been employed by Breese for several years. Both were suspected of the murder of Breese. The police investigation revealed that Walters had been in the city on the morning of June 5, 1925, and that Boardman had been in the city on the same morning. Walters had been seen at the Breese home at 1 o'clock in the morning, and Boardman had been seen at the Breese home at 11:30 p. m. on the same night. The police concluded that Walters was the murderer of Breese.

RADIOING THE AIR WAVES

BY THE DIAL TWISTER.

High revelry by radio is scheduled for New Year's eve, as festive crowds throughout the country dance to the music of New York's best jazz orchestras. Six of these, from hotel grills and restaurants on Broadway, will broadcast in rapid succession over the N. B. C. system from 9:30 New Year's eve to 1 o'clock Tuesday morning, Atlanta time.

Promptly at 11 p. m., the clamor of Trinity's chimes will announce the New Year in the eastern time zone, and after a short carillon program the revels will be resumed. Just before 11 p. m., the dancing will be interrupted for a special New Year's message by Dr. Karl Reiland, noted clergyman and orator, who will speak less than five minutes. His voice will be followed immediately by the chimes from old Trinity church, ringing in the New Year on the Atlantic coast.

Six famous jazz leaders will direct their henchmen in the four-hour broadcast New Year's eve. B. A. Rolfe at the Palais d'Or; Hal Kemp at the Hotel Manger grill; Teddy Bartlett at Yeong's restaurant on Broadway; Ben Follack at the Park Central; Phil Spitalo at the Pennsylvania grill, and Ben Bernie at the Roosevelt will vie with each other in a tournament of feverish rhythms. The special dance programs will be broadcast over a wide network of the N. B. C. system headed by WEA-F, New York. For Dr. Reiland's message and the Trinity chimes, the 11 p. m. stations will be joined by WJZ, New York, and a different hookup of N. B. C. associated broadcasters.

After 11 p. m. the extra chain will sign off, and the revelry continues over the original network far into the morning.

On New Year's day over the N. B. C. system will be broadcast the inauguration ceremonies for Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt with full details of the event by N. B. C. announcer and the inaugural addresses of Mr. Roosevelt and Lieut. Governor Herbert Lehman. This will be broadcast at 11 p. m. through WEA-F, New York; WGY, Schenectady, and WGR, Buffalo, completing a state-wide network.

Afternoon programs, January 1, reach a climax at 3:30 p. m., Atlanta time, when all networks of the N. B. C. system from coast to coast are linked for the annual south-west football game in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif. The game will continue on the west coast long after dark on the Atlantic.

The passing of the old and the welcoming of the New Year will be celebrated on the air from 9 o'clock on tonight, over the Columbia system. This broadcast will be in the line of an informal party that will take place all over the city. Announcers and engineers will be placed in the various spots where New Year's eve is being celebrated most fully in New York, and the celebratory program will jump from one night club or hotel to another. In other words, the radio audience will be enabled to enjoy all the high spots of New York's characteristically festive New Year's celebration. At one moment before midnight in New York (11 p. m. Atlanta time) Times Square will be the center of activities, and listeners will hear the noise and excitement that will take place in the center of the largest city of America in its greeting to that newcomer.

New Year's eve gaiety and merry-making will prevail in the Warner Brothers studio, where the radio phone booth will be broadcast tonight at 8:30 o'clock through the Columbia system.

Hilarity and fun will be contributed by all present, and the festivities are expected to join in. The festivities will be helped along by the Carpenters' trip, the Scene-Shifters' brigade, and the Floor Moppers' quartet, in addition to any persons who may find themselves in the studio at that time.

At 10:30 a general half-hour of fun will add to the celebration attending on the passing of 1928.

An elaborate arrangement of selections from Friml's operetta featuring Franklyn Baur, tenor soloist, The Chorus and orchestra, will be a feature of the "Voice of Firestone" program to be broadcast through WSB and the N. B. C. system at 7 o'clock tonight.

"Indian Love Call" and "Rose Marie, I Love You" from Friml's "Rose Marie" and "Allah's Holiday" are among the selections taken from Friml's operetta to be heard on this date.

Under the direction of Hugo Majani, the orchestra will play the "Hungarian Rhapsody," by the Hungarian composer, Franz Liszt, "Auf Wiedersehen" and excerpts from Geršwin's "Song of the Flame," "Don't Hold Everything," from "Hold Everything," "I Can't Give You Anything But Love" and "I'm on the Crest of a Wave."
